JUST THE JOB!

Thousands apply for new jobs at Tesco superstore

THE royal borough's jobs agency, GLLaB received 4,000 applications from locals who want to work at the new Tesco in Woolwich.

Interviews are now being arranged for 650 people, and will take place all next week from Monday (October 15). A hundred interviews will be held for specialist roles, such as fishmongers, bakers and butchers.

There are a total of 350 jobs available. Tesco has also asked GLLaB to interview for other jobs for the concession businesses that are going into the store. They include beauty consultants, pharmacy staff, and an admin post.

The new store is due to open next month. It is part of a 1.4 million sq ft, multi-million pound development scheme in Love Lane with the first 259 homes due for completion by the end of 2013. Three million pounds of transport and community infrastructure will also be invested in the area over the project's lifetime.

A real pick-me-up

WOULD you thank very much the three lads and lady who picked me up when I fell very heavily and they phoned for an ambulance which took me to the QE. As I am 86 years old, I was frightened and I am so grateful to them. It was the 19th of September in Kingsman Street, Woolwich

Star Letter

...and I'll second that

I'M a single pensioner and I'd like to say a big thank you to the people who helped me after a fall in Woolwich. It happened on July 5 at the Calderwood Street crossing. I don't remember exactly what happened, I just blacked out and fell. I was out for the count and when I came to I was in the Queen Elizabeth hospital.

From what I remember there were two young ladies and one man. They didn't know me but they really were marvellous, and called me an ambulance. Apart from a bump on my head I was okay thankfully, but it could have been much worse if it wasn't for the kindness of strangers.

P. Liggins, Plumstead

Matt's the way to do it!

WELL done to young Matthew Roberston. Your story about him learning to cycle despite being paralysed down one side is a real inspiration. I showed the story to my 12-year-old who is really struggling to ride her first proper bike and assured her that with determination, effort and practise she could become as good as Matthew. The fact that he is around the same age has spurred her on and she is a little less reluctant to get in the saddle for a ride around the park.

Thanks from everyone at Severndroog Castle

A BIG thank you to all those people who braved the wind and rain to visit the information stall at Severndroog Castle on Sunday, September 23. The event, which was part of the London-wide Open House weekend, enabled the trust to provide an update on plans to restore the building.

For those who were unable to attend, work will start in early March, 2013, with completion of restoration in early September, 2013. For regular updates readers should visit the trust website: www.severndroogcastle.org.uk

Why the gates closure?

I AM writing to enquire why pedestrians are prohibited from using the Charlton Park Lane gates entrances to Hornfair Park. These entrances have been available for public use for the past 75 years so why the sudden decision to close them to pedestrians? I also find the wording on the signs offensive. Surely if you have a legitimate reason for closing them it could have been worded differently. W R Weller, Charlton ● ACCESS routes were re-configured as part of the refurbishment of the Lido and were subject to planning applications. Apologies for any inconvenience caused. The council is reviewing the situation, and the wording on the sign will be changed.

Cash boost for historic church

Restoration campaigners receive £75k MoD grant

HISTORIC LANDMARK: above, the chapel in its heyday, left, a group of supporters including Wesley Kerr, chairman of Heritage Lottery Fund for London and Col Ed Brockman, inspect the site

by Dick Townsend-Smith

A £75,000 grant has been given to the campaign to save an historic Woolwich church.

St. George's Garrison Chapel next to Woolwich Barracks has been at risk since losing its roof in a bombing raid during the Second World War.

The drive to save the Grade II listed building - which is home to beautiful mosaics and decorative marbles and the Royal Artillery VC memorial, is being led by Heritage of London Trust Operations (HOLTOp).

The £700,000 cost of the work is being met from several sources including the Heritage Lottery Fund and English Heritage. Now, another £75,000 has come from the Ministry of Defence's Community Covenant grant scheme.

Royal Greenwich was one of the first local authorities to sign up to the covenant scheme, which supports projects promoting greater ties between the military and the local civilian population. It led on the bid for the grant to the MoD, supported by the local military and voluntary and community groups, the health service and local businesses.

Col Ed Brockman, station commander at Woolwich Barracks said: "St George's Church was an integral part of the Army's garrison in Woolwich until it was badly damaged by a bomb in 1944, yet it is perhaps poignant to note that the Royal Artillery Victoria Cross Memorial survived.

"The Royal Artillery has always valued its strong historical links with Woolwich and I believe that it is so very important that the church is made accessible to the general public to share the many treasures that lie within it."

Once restored, there are plans to use the chapel for the community, such as staging local history events and music concerts. A friends of St. George's group has been set up to take over the management of the building once work is complete.

The church was built in the 1860s to serve the Royal Artillery Barracks. It was used for regular Sunday church parades with military bands and hundreds of uniformed soldiers. It is still used for open-air services.

Cllr Peter Kotz, the royal borough's cabinet member for cultural and creative industries said: "We are delighted that this new grant has been given to support the campaign to save St George's. The Royal Artillery is an essential part of the history of Woolwich and we are pleased that, once finished, it will be used by other local groups and organisations."

ENERGY BUSTERS

Expert advisers offer free power saving measures

ENERGY-saving experts will be knocking on doors in the areas of Middle Park and Sutcliffe offering a package of measures to householders.

It's all part of RE:NEW a project to help residents make their homes more energy efficient.

The project is run in partnership by the Greater London Authority, London Councils, the Energy Saving Trust and the 33 London boroughs.

Householders in the two wards are due to be written to informing them of the free measures which they are eligible for.

These include:

- A free, no obligation energy assessment of their home
- A series of easy-to-install measures such as an energy monitor and aerated showerheads
- Advice from a qualified energy assessor about how simple changes to their behaviour could save energy
- A free home energy report informing them of how they could make further energy efficiency improvements to their home.

All the assessors and installation teams will wear clearly marked ID and will never ask for payment directly.

The measures are being offered to residents within the defined area of Middle Park and Sutcliffe, regardless of property type or tenure. Residents in the Middle Park and Sutcliffe areas should call 0800 612 8879 to book an appointment.

Letters are also being sent to private homes in wider parts of the borough. Depending on their circumstances and the suitability of their home, residents may also benefit from:

- Free loft and cavity wall insulation
- Free or subsidised loft top-up insulation.
- A cashback reward of £100 per measure installed available to certain qualifying residents. For example, if they take loft and cavity wall insulation they will receive £200 to spend as they wish.
- Advice to ensure that they are claiming all their benefit and tax credit entitlements, helping remove people from fuel poverty.

Residents who do not qualify for the free measures can still benefit from a technical survey to see if their homes are suitable for free loft and cavity wall insulation and find out more about other energy saving schemes. Phone 0800 328 8279 or visit www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/energyefficiency

Cllr Harry Singh, the royal borough's cabinet member for Greener Greenwich, said: "It's important that residents act now as this offer is only available for a limited time and any works need to be completed by December. As winter approaches, it's vital that residents will feel warmer and more comfortable in their homes and this project aims to make it easier for Greenwich residents to improve the energy efficiency of their homes."

Making contacts

HOUSING panel reps got a behind-the-scenes view of the royal borough's contact centre in Woolwich. A group of ten from various local housing panels were invited to learn about the systems in place for dealing with housing enquiries and complaints and the issues involved. They listened in on calls and learned how they are managed and attended a question and answer session with council staff. Eighty-year-old Eve McKinley from Charlton said: "I've been a tenant of the borough for more than 30 years and after retiring from being a civil servant in 1997, I wanted to get more involved with issues in the community as I had spare time on my hands. I'm already part of my local tenants and residents association and housing panel team. The afternoon at the contact centre was very interesting. I got to see how busy it gets down there and I think the people that work there are brilliant. They have to deal with a lot of different issues, particularly to do with repairs and Cleansweep. To work there you need to have good listening skills and be extremely patient. Callers might be elderly or have English as a second language, so they need to be able to find out the nature of the call and dig deeper into their queries."

On the homes front

Housing reps get qualified with royal borough support

by Grace Lipski

HOME is where the heart is and two residents who help to improve the homes of their neighbours have been recognised at an awards ceremony.

As members of the boroughwide housing panel volunteers Balbir Singh and Joan Hannachi are stars in their communities liaising with tenants and the council over a wealth of housing issues. Now the pair have finished a course which will help them to do an even better job.

They are the latest housing panel reps selected to complete a Chartered Institute of Housing (CIH) foundation course by the council's community participation and diversity team. The six-month course included class work, assignments and work experience and gave them an entry level qualification if they want to go on to apply for jobs in housing.

The couple, who were invited to do the course because of their work in the community, received their certificates last month.

Balbir is treasurer of the Woolwich Dockyard tenant and residents' group and also offers his services as chairman of Greenwich Homestart. He told GT: "I really enjoyed the housing course. It was a good atmosphere and was very interesting. I learned many things like how important the repair and maintenance of housing is, aspects of social housing development, how to deal with complaints and concerns and what procedures need to be put in place with evicted properties."

He added: "I've always been interested in housing and would like to go on and do an advanced course." Joan from Charlton went on the course as an extension of what she already does as a housing panel volunteer. She is also a member of her local neighbourhood watch.

"I've been a volunteer at the housing panel for two years. My role involves going to inspect properties for new tenants and learning about housing practices," she said.

"The course has had its challenges – I've only had experience in retail before as a clothing manager, so this was completely different for me. The assignments and homework were very involved and I learned how to be more computer-literate."

"I learned about the different policies with rent and subletting and discrimination issues."

Cllr Steve Offord, the royal borough's cabinet member for housing said: "The work of our housing panel reps is invaluable in helping us to provide a housing service. Balbir and Joan are well known for the efforts they make in trying to improve housing in their respective communities."

We are delighted to support them in gaining formal housing qualifications which will be of benefit to them in their voluntary roles as housing panel reps and for their prospects of getting a job in this area."

Y1 pupils top in primary reading tests

CHILDREN who start school in the Greenwich borough are doing better than average in tests designed to check progress in their reading.

Year Ones are screened to check they are meeting the required standard in what is called 'phonic decoding' – the system of learning that helps them get to grips with sounds and words.

The tests identify children who need extra help so they can be given support by their school to improve their reading. They are then able to retake the tests so the schools can track how they are doing.

In Greenwich, 65 per cent of Year One pupils are working to the standard required in phonics. This compares with a national average of 58 per cent. It puts the borough in equal seventh place in the country.

In another series of tests, called Key Stage One, there have also been improvements, particularly in writing and maths. It puts Greenwich at or above the national average in a set of measures.

Cllr Jackie Smith, the royal borough's cabinet member for children's services, said:

"These results confirm that children here are getting a good grounding in the basics, and that more able children are being stretched and encouraged to excel.

And it comes on top of the recent KS2 results for 11-year-olds, which showed that Greenwich performs better than most authorities in the country at helping children make progress during their years at primary school."

Black history

ALL ages can celebrate Black History Month at a series of events over the next few weeks. Young people aged 8 to 13 can learn about the great kings and queens of Africa as part of a Saturday cultural event at Woolwich Centre library. 'Out of Africa' also looks at famous African legends and African dance during hour-long session about black culture. Youngsters then put together a performance for friends and family. The free event runs from 2 to 3.30pm until October 20. This Friday, join five female artists to celebrate Black History Month and the 50th anniversary of Ugandan independence. Women of Kampala features deeply traditional Ugandan music. The performance is at Charlton House at 7pm on October 12. Tickets £8. 020 8858 9497. October 25 sees the start of an eight-week support group for African and Caribbean women at Greenwich Mind, 54 Ormiston Road, SE10 0LN, from 6-8pm from October 25. LOCAL firms can get help to bid for work with developers of multi-million pound housing projects in the borough.

Business-owners are invited to a Meet the buyer event on Wednesday next week (October 17). It's a chance for local construction firms and tradesmen to network with contractors who are leading major building and redevelopment schemes for the Royal Borough of Greenwich.

The breakfast event runs from 7.30am to 9.30am at the Slug and Lettuce at The O2. Tickets are £5 and the event includes breakfast and there's free parking.

The meeting was organised by South East Enterprise (SEE), the business support agency backed by the royal borough which runs a range of services for new and existing businesses.

Next week's event is aimed at local firms in the building and construction trades and aims to introduce them to contractors such as Durkan Homes, Lakehouse and Quintain which have been awarded major new build and regeneration contracts by the royal borough.

The work includes thousands of new homes on and upgrade works to kitchens, roofs, windows and doors in council homes.

During the event there will be presentations from the contractors and from SEE representatives followed by networking.

SEE's managing director Tony Goldstein said: "This gives local businesses an opportunity to engage with the council and with the major contractors. They can meet the contractors to gain a better understanding of their expectations and learn more about what's required to become an approved supplier."

He added: "SEE will then support local firms to become fit to supply so that they can bid for work. We'll help them to meet the criteria by making sure they have all the required policies in place and then help them to apply for various contracts.

"These are multi-million pound developments with huge contracts and we are looking for a good percentage of that work going to local businesses."

Ken Murtagh MD of Alpha Chemicals in Nathan Way, Thamesmead, is set to go along next week. The six-strong Buyers, be there!

Firms meet contractors to bid for building work firm - which he runs with his brother David - provides water treatments such as chlorination and sterilisation to public, commercial and domestic buildings.

Ken told GT: "These kinds of events give us a chance to meet the big contractors and make ourselves known. If I tried to make an arrangement with one of their MDs I wouldn't get anywhere but I can go along to this type of event, have a chat with the contractors and give them our literature so that when the contracts do come out they'll already know about us. It opens doors and gives smaller companies the opportunity to quote."

BY SPECIAL INVITATION: business owners listen to a presentation at a previous Meet the Buyer event, above, a promotional poster for next week's event

He added: "If we could secure a contract it would make a big difference to us as we could employ some local people."

And he praised the continued support offered by SEE saying: "Nowadays you need to have all sorts of policies in place, it's a real minefield and many smaller companies tend to fall down on the paperwork. But the free package of support offered by SEE means they can help you with getting all the requisite documents in place so you can compete for potential contract opportunities."

Poets who know it and want to show it

ARE you a young poet, know it and want to show it? Well, you could see your poem published, watch it performed or hear it recorded. Performance group Live Canon, and Greenwich Theatre have got together to run a poetry competition for five to 15-year-olds.

There are three age categories - five to seven, eight to 11 and 12 to 15. Ten shortlisted poems in each category will be:

- published in an anthology
- recorded on an audio CD
- performed by the Live Canon ensemble at the prize giving ceremony

The prize giving forms part of the 2013 Greenwich Children's Festival. The winner in each category will receive £100 in book tokens and the runner-up will receive a selection of poetry books. There will also be a prize for the school which has sent the best set of entries. The event will take place at Greenwich Theatre during the Greenwich Children's Festival in the Easter holidays, 2013. All details about the competition can be found on Live Canon's website at www.livecanon.com/childrenscompetition with further details about Live Canon and its shows and upcoming performances. Parents can download an entry form to enter your children's poems. If you are a teacher and would like to submit a whole class of entries email livecanon@btinternet.com and they will send you a school's entry form. The deadline for entries is November 5, 2012. If you are 16 or over you can still take part by entering Live Canon's adult poetry competition, which is also on the Live Canon website www.livecanon.com

Come and see how the hospice cares

Open day at Abbey Wood part of world event

A COMMUNITY hospice is throwing open its doors for people to see first hand the service and facilities available.

The Greenwich and Bexley Community Hospice at Abbey Wood will welcome visitors as part of World Hospice and Palliative Care Day on Saturday, October 13, a unified day of action to celebrate and support hospice and palliative care around the world.

The theme for the day is 'Living to the end: palliative care for an ageing population'.

Every year on the second Saturday of October events are organised across approximately 70 countries to celebrate and support the work of the hospice movement, bringing together patients, families, health care professionals, policy makers and funders.

The preceding seven days is also Hospice Care Week (October 8-14) with a national campaign called 'Hospice care, be surprised' which highlights the personal way that hospice care helps patients living with terminal illness.

People who visit the hospice

COME AND SEE FOR YOURSELF: staff at the Greenwich & Bexley Community Hospice ready to welcome visitors to their open day at 185 Bostall Hill will be given a tour of the hospice and meet the staff and volunteers over light refreshments. There is no need to book - just turn up between 12 noon and 4 pm.

Hospice chief executive Kate Heaps told GT: "The care the hospice provides does not just take place in this building. Hospice care happens wherever the person needs it and aims to improve the lives of people who have a life-limiting or terminal illness, helping them to live well before they die.

"Hospice care not only takes care of people's physical needs, but looks after their emotional, spiritual and social needs as well. It also supports carers, family members and close friends, both during a person's illness and during bereavement.

"Our open day is a great chance for people to find out more about the service and facilities we provide and see them first hand."

Boppin' Bunnies celebrate fifth birthday in style

BOPPIN' Bunnies, set up by local mum-of-two and musician Anna Shepherd, celebrated its fifth birthday in style with more than 250 people joining in a music and movement session to raise nearly £500 for Demelza children's hospice and For Life, a charity which supports abandoned children in Thailand. Highlight of the afternoon included a live performance by Lorna, Anna and Alice, of a traditional English song on two violins and cello.

And just when the children thought it couldn't get any better, Peppa Pig arrived. A birthday cake with a giant sparkler had been donated by parents. Their next special event will be a Boppin' Bunnies Ceilidh event on Saturday, October 20, at St. Joseph's School, Commerell Street, Greenwich, at 2.45pm. The organisation was set up to bring music and movement to early years children. Find out more at www.boppinbunnies.co.uk

Olympic Park cafe operator wanted

CAFE operators are invited to make a bid to run a new eatery in the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park. The park's owner is asking for expressions of interest from experienced café operators to lease and operate an 80-seat café and community and events space in the north of the park. There were some fantastic performances in the annual Borough Swimming Championships at the Eltham Centre on Sunday, September 23.

As the pick of swimmers in Greenwich battled it out, they brought out the best in each other.

Three of the 11-year-old boys - Luke Brown, Alexander Ball and Rahul Shrestha - had a thrilling battle.

The best race of the day came in the 50-metre butterfly, where Luke edged out Rahul by just six one-hundredths of a second.

Luke also went on to win the 50m breaststroke and 50m freestyle as well - while Alexander won the 50m backstroke.

Timothy Leberl was the pick of the 10-year-old boys, winning all four races. Sam Ball won the nine-year-olds.

Honours were shared out evenly among the 12-year-old girls Izzy Merriman won the 100 butterfly, Natalie Smith the backstroke, Kate Drury the breaststroke and Zahra Crane the freestyle.

In the 15 to 16 age group,

STROKE OF PLUCK: determined Rachel Davis on her way to winning the 100 breaststroke

Natasha Sinha won the fly and back before pipping Rachel Davis in a thrilling freestyle race where the lead changed hands three times. Rachel went on to win the 100m breaststroke.

Natasha's sister Sabrina won the back and freestyle in the 13 to 14 age group, with Alexandra Di Mascio taking the butterfly and Chanel Robinson the breaststroke.

George Evans won three of the events in the 17-year-old age group with Alex Picksley winning the breaststroke. And Tim Adelani also won three of the events in the 15 to 16 age group, with Fred Evans winning the breaststroke.

Kirsty Moore did superbly amongst the nine-year-old girls, winning three events while Alice Hickson won the breaststroke.

Tomas Traupys did equally well, winning three of the 12-year-old boys' events, with Kylon Buck winning the butterfly.

And there were some terrific performances from Charlie Woodham and Jamaal Francis in the younger age group. While in the 13 to 14-year-olds, Joe Doublet won the back and breaststroke, with Richard Blatchford taking the fly and freestyle.

Two girls dominated in the 10-year-old section. Annabel Walker won the back and free (with a broken finger!), while Maddie Skinner won the fly and breaststroke.

Council leader Chris Roberts said: "Congratulations to all those who took part in another fine borough championships. The standard of competition was extremely high and reflects the dedication and enthusiasm of these young athletes. Events like these championships are helping to nurture a future generation of sporting heroes and are a good example of the sporting legacy of the London 2012 Games."

LET'S ALL ROCK THE MIC: getting to grips with the equipment in the radio room

Something for everyone

PLACES to go, people to see and things to do.

That's the offer to young people from the new organisers of youth services in the borough.

They've laid on dozens of after school and evening activities as part of a partnership deal with the Royal Borough of Greenwich.

Activities include coaching and training in sport and healthy living, music and performing arts, digital media, arts and culture, volunteering, and discovering their local heritage.

They're organised by the Charlton Athletic Community Trust (CACT), which has been running youth services on behalf of the royal borough since April. This pioneering partnership means CACT is working with a range of organisations to bring expertise and local knowledge into the youth service.

It means a total of 88 different sessions are held every week, and around 5,000 young people take part in them.

The programme is intended to be as inclusive as possible for young people with disabilities. As well as activities for disabled young people, young people can talk to the Trust or youth workers about what help they need to enable them to participate fully.

A highlight is a photographic competition open to 10 to 19 year olds, or up to 25 for those with learning difficulties. Entrants have been asked to take at least six photos showcasing what it means to be a young person in Greenwich. The competition will be judged by Capital FM breakfast show host Dave Berry, who is a Youth Service ambassador, and Cllr Jackie Smith, the royal borough's cabinet member for children and young people. And the winners of each age group will receive an SLR digital camera and the opportunity to go on a day's shoot with a professional photographer. Details at www.young-greenwich.org.uk/photo-greenwich

Other popular activities include a radio DJ workshop at The Hub in Nightingale Place, Woolwich Common, pool, computer technology, and T-shirt design and printing at Valley Central in Charlton.

Ten-year-old twins Daisy and Lily Woodland, and their friend Lily Latamsing, also ten, were proud of their t-shirt designs. Daisy said: "It's really good here. I put Jessie J on my T-shirt, and I'll wear it to school when we next have a 'home clothes' day." Her sister Lily said: "I put a family picture on mine from the Diamond Jubilee."

Pal Lily Latamsing added: "It's more fun than school here. I've played pool, made a T-shirt with JLS on, and been in the computer room. I want to make bracelets next."

Pool fans Tyler Walker, 10, and Chakib Bellamine, 11, were practising hard at Valley Central. Tyler said: "We like playing table tennis against each other as well, and I'm always in the computer room." Chakib chirped: "It's good to come here and do your homework, because you can go into the IT suite which has loads of computers and if you get stuck you can get help."

SMITH finds out what's on...

CACT's full activity programme was launched in April, and operates during school term time for 40 weeks a year along with a school holiday programme of more than 10 weeks each year. During the school holidays, there are up to 10 sessions per week in an activity programme complementing the summer programme from Futureversity, previously called Summer Uni.

Matt Horne, CACT's youth partnership manager and manager at Valley Central said: "This has been a massive programme for us and I'm very pleased with the progress we've made. The young people have benefitted because we are running more sessions at more locations across the borough."

Cllr Jackie Smith, the royal borough's cabinet member for children's services said: "Our pioneering partnership with Charlton Athletic Community Trust is a win-win for everyone involved. While many boroughs are cutting back services, the royal borough's decision means that young people here will have better access to support and coaching from experts."

"We are proud to be offering this at a time of unprecedented cuts in government funding to local authorities."

A blank Chekhov?

IS James Haddrell the Arsene Wenger of the theatre world, discovering amazing talent that others can only drool over?

One thing's for sure, Jimmy's got to invite back the Theatre Movement Bazaar mob, the Los Angeles company whose Anton's Uncles was a funny and stunningly enjoyable rework of Chekhov's Uncle Vanya.

The theatre is now the production partner for the play's mini-tour of south England, so you can find out where and get yourself there if so disposed. Believe me, it's well worth the effort.

And this particular public demand to young Jim is: bring 'em back – either more of Anton's Uncles or more of the same.

The hand-out blurb talked about "decontextualising classic texts, exploring threads and developing a physical language", and frankly I couldn't have put it better myself.

What I can do is quote the 16-year-old protégé from the Brit School who sat next to me in F10 and is already comfortable with more hyphens than a Wodehouse peer – Ember-Blue Henderson-Melville.

As well as agreeing on the stage name of Ember Henderson, the lad from Blackheath opined: "I don't think they were taking the mickey out of Chekhov. They just focused on the humour rather than the serious stuff. We're doing Three Sisters at the moment and we all went to see it at the Young Vic last night.

"Tonight I learned about saying your lines during movements, not just when you stop moving, and I loved the way they were determined to get the passion across to the audience. I felt privileged to watch it.

"I loved the physicality of the show and the way they decontext..." Yeah, okay Ember, we get the point. Let's find out where they are next time and see it again, shall we?

All four actors were great – with Derrick Oshana's professor causing automatic chuckles – and a special plaudit goes to director/choreographer Tina Kronis. Check it out if you can. PC

Oxfam's annual music charity event hits the Pelton Arms this week

On the bill from October 9 to 14 there are bands, DJs, a pub quiz, and even some rock 'n' roll knitting.

Oxfam has been running since 2006, and has raised more than £1.75million for the charity. The month-long music festival makes its way all over the UK during October.

Tonight, (October 9), there's a pub quiz at the East Greenwich pub, which costs £1.

Tomorrow, October 10, there's rock 'n' roll knitting before a DJ set from Blackheath Panda Scooter Club. On Friday night there are acoustic sets from Tom Minchin from the Dirty Reds, and Andrew Abbott from Star

GREENWICH THEATRE LONDON

Kick out the oxjam

Witness. Saturday sees a three-band bill, with Kit Curtis and the B3s, The Bob Dylan Experience, and Ronnie Ripple and the Ripchords all performing, before the Los Dawsons close out the week on Sunday.

Manager of the Pelton Arms, Jason Macey told Scene: "We enjoy holding events to raise money for charity because it's for a good cause. We recently helped Greenwich Oxfam with their Great Treasure Hunt event and that was top.

"I think raising money for charity like this is effective because someone going around with a collection pot can put people off a bit, they can end up feeling begrudged. But when you've got participation and fun activities like this, people feel they're getting something out of it and will delve into their pockets that bit more."

Katy, from Greenwich Oxfam added: "We are really excited to be putting on a whole series of events for Oxfam this year, they are incorporating a variety of local talent and should have a real community feel. This will be our best Greenwich Oxfam yet!"

MAKING WAVES: Ronnie Ripple and the Ripchords play on Saturday night

B.o.B a good job

ANOTHER day, and another US rapper keeps the crowd waiting for an eternity.

And when B.o.B, (Robert to his friends, presumably), finally did come onto the Indigo2 stage, it was as if he'd been shoved without being ready. He charged out in an army hat with military backing music. 'Bombs Away', kicked it all off and the tall lad MC'd his way through the track, at one point hurling a bottle of water onto the unassuming crowd. I wasn't sure how they took to the christening of water, but it certainly heightened the energy with all manner of objects returned to the stage. It was a case of do as I say, not as I do though, as the apparently coy rap artist asked them to 'kindly refrain' from throwing things.

The show was promoted as having 'special guests' and special guests were aplenty - he had stage time with the likes of Playboy and Grand Hustle. The latter was a blonde haired lady who came on grunting and squatting on the stage in little more than a leotard which left little to the imagination. She seemed out of step with the show, and was trying too hard to be 'in' with the scene.

The 23-year old American mixed it

BOB'S YOUR UNCLE: B.o.B on stage at the Indigo2 in full regalia up at one phase by playing a grand piano demonstrating his more sensitive nature, his diversity and the creativity of his artistic ability.

The most bizarre moment in the show was the performance of a track titled 'Out of my Mind' - he entered the stage along with his dancers in a straightjacket and crazy facial makeup. You didn't know whether to laugh or cry it was insanely off the wall.

Well-known songs like 'Pricetag' - (minus Jessie J), and 'Nothin' on You' were showcased. The singer stripped off to his torso to serenade a member of the crowd and surf the throng. The security guards were on the watch and it was just as amusing to watch their reaction as it was to see the female members of the crowd hyperventilate. He ended the gig with his super successful no.1 hit 'Airplanes', featuring Hayley Williams.

The constant energy and activity onstage made the atmosphere positively electric. If you happened to be a hip hop fan the show was guaranteed to be right up your street with lots of profanity, sexy dancing, boastful lyrics and fast-paced rapping - if hip hop wasn't your cup of tea you could've felt you'd wondered right into somebody's rampant house party.

TEMPER, TEMPER: outburst at rehearsal

PROGRESS HALL, ELTHAM

All My Sons. Thurs Oct 11-Sat Oct 13
THEY take to the stage three times a year and have been doing so for 47 years!

Eltham's Priory Players meet at Progress Hall just off Well Hall Road every Tuesday and throw ideas into the pot about which productions to put on next.

The company returns this October with one of their favourite playwright's work, Arthur Miller's All My Sons.

The tale centres on a family in the aftermath of World War Two. One of their sons, Larry is tragically killed in the war and following his death, his former sweetheart Annie turns up releasing different emotions and themes within the family framework.

Past shows include Sinbad the Sailor and King Arthur to grittier projects like The Crucible and Death of a Salesman.

All My Sons opens at the Progress Hall, Eltham for three days from Thursday October 11-Saturday October 13 at 7.45pm. Tickets are £7/£6 concs, book on 07502 450 983 or www.prioryplayers.com

Royal Borough of Greenwich's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Edition 308

How the lettings policy works

Housing applicants are placed within 'Bands' according to the Royal Borough of Greenwich's policy for letting homes. Your band information is on the letter that the Council sent you when you registered, or when your circumstances changed. Property adverts say which band can apply and any other criteria. When all the bids are received, the property is then offered to: For properties advertised for band A and band B - the applicant who has had this priority status for the longest time. For properties advertised for band C applicants - the applicant who has been registered on the Council's list for the longest time.

BAND

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B is for applicants the Royal Borough of Greenwich must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

How do I apply?

Get on the list

First, you've got to be on the housing waiting list to join the scheme. If you're not, register an application on line at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk

Find your applicant number

It will be on the letter you've already had from the Royal Borough of Greenwich about the new scheme. You'll need that number and the reference number of the property you're after, which will be on the advert.

Pick out your ideal property

by looking in Greenwich Time or regularly checking the website:

www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

Click on your preference on the website. If you don't have a computer, you can always use one for free in either your neighbourhood housing office, library or UK Online centre.

Apply in one of two ways

- Phone the 24-hour hotline 020 8921 4340. It's an automatic push-button system and calls will be charged at the normal local rate, or
- Via the Royal Borough of Greenwich's website www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

The next edition of GreenwichHomes will be available on Wednesday 17 October 2012 at midday and will include any Housing Association properties when available. Closing date for all applications for this issue is midnight on Sunday 14 October 2012.

GreenwichHomes

Royal Borough of Greenwich's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Important Notice

Changes to the rents and tenancies of some advertised housing association properties.

Affordable Housing

Currently the rent level for the properties you see advertised in Greenwich Homes is significantly lower than full market rents in private sector housing.

From now you will now be seeing some housing association properties advertised for higher rents, up to eighty percent of the market rent. These rents will also include the service charge that you will need to pay for the property. We will use the phrase Affordable Housing on the adverts to help you identify these properties.

Please note the Council will continue to advertise all the homes it owns at the standard rent level.

You can bid for properties advertised as Affordable Housing in exactly the same way as for other advertised properties. If you are successful the housing association may want to check you have enough income to pay the higher rent, whether you are working or on benefits. If you are currently a housing association tenant the rent you pay on your present home will not be affected by this change.

Fixed term tenancies

You will also notice that the tenancies for Affordable Housing and some other housing association properties may now be for a shorter period than the present lifetime tenancies offered by housing associations. The phrase Fixed term tenancy will be used in the adverts to identify these properties. The tenancy details will be explained to you if you are successful when you view the property.

Please think about these changes when bidding for an Affordable housing property and make sure you can afford the home that you choose.

This is what happened to the homes advertised in issue 305

New squash club joins campaign to make the Olympics

"I'm confident we'll build rapidly from here," said John. "We are trying hard to get squash into the 2020 Olympics and it helps that the top two players in the world are British - Nick Matthew and James Willstrop.

"We'll be holding internal competitions at the club and hope to be able to take on other clubs and field teams in local leagues before very long. Parents can watch sessions and matches from the warmth and comfort of the upstairs gallery."

The club runs three sessions. Cubs (six to nine) benefit from the emphasis on building co-ordination and movement skills as well as fitness and shot play. Intermediates (10-13) and seniors (14-18) develop their shots, learn the finer points of the game and play against each other.

Parent Andy Porter, who lives in Charlton, said: "My daughter Mia really enjoyed her session. John managed to keep her entertained for an hour and I'm sure her abilities will improve as a result."

Make room for squash!

New junior club joins the campaign to make it an Olympic sport by 2020

by Peter Cordwell

TO squash players it makes no sense that their sport is not part of the Olympics.

There's a proper campaign to get the four-wall game involved in 2020, and World Squash Day on October 20 will add more power to their elbow with 6,000 players signed up to show how much they care.

Getting more children and young people involved is an obvious part of the strategy, so the new Blackheath Junior Squash Club is an important move in the right direction.

"There's a real resurgence taking place across the country and squash is such a great game for young people, getting them to high levels of fitness," said club coach John Mead. "It never gets rained off, the ball doesn't keep running away like it does in tennis and parents don't have to watch on freezing, muddy fields."

John, 46, set up a thriving junior club in Suffolk but after moving to Blackheath last year, Stowmarket's loss became Greenwich's gain. The new club, based in Blackheath Sports Club at the Rectory Field in Charlton Road, got off to a flying start with 12 keen young players attending the first session.
